

Type I and II Error example: A toy company needs to determine if a race car meets safety standards.

Null: The toy meets safety standards

Alternative: The toy does not meet safety standards

Type 1: False Positive

A test showed that the toy race car was determined to be not safe but actually it was safe.

Type 2: False Negative

A test showed that the toy race car was determined to be safe but actually it was unsafe.